“ Uncle Richard was a very lovable man. He never turned his back on anyone. I miss all the times he would bring in the wash out from his cement truck and have all of us out there to shovel it to fix the road. Or all the times I would come over and he would be laid back in his recliner, and his words was here she comes. Or all the nights I would stay with Lisa and we would be up all night for him to get up in the middle of the night to tells us to get in bed. There was not a dual moment. He loved all of us the same no matter how much we would aggravate him. You will be dearly miss Uncle Richard. RIP until we meet again.
