“ Im still in disbelief that Donnie has moved on. My sincere condolences to Terri and his children. Know that you are in my prayers. Tears are running down my face as i write this. Donnie was the hardest working and hardest loving person I've had the pleasure of knowing. He loved his family first. All his stories, and there were many, all seemed to circle his true loves, his family. I was with Don the night before the gender reveal...oh the excitement. He was so proud of that baby boy. The name pop pop he wore proudly. The wedding, i never got tired of the stories. He was proud of his still dark hair and teased me about my grey hair. Oh so many memories. My only regret, i never told him how much i valued our friendship. If we didnt see each other for awhile he'd find me in the plant and fill me in on the latest happenings in his life. There will never be another Donald Bryne. He was one in a million and will be missed by many.
