“ My best memories of Jamie always surrounded around our joyrides in the car. She was the first to get a car, so in high school she drove me and a few friends home. She was always driving crazy and hit a pot hole that launched us all into the car roof. Yes, it hurt, but we were all laughing, adrenaline rushing. It was one of those best times you always remember.

Another time our early 20's, on yet another joy ride we did traveling down to the shore, I found out her favorite song was "Rich Girl" by Hall & Oats. Lol. We were singing it at the top of our lungs, talking, and laughing the whole way. I always think of her when that song comes on and always will. As the years went on, car rides and lunches for our own birthdays turned in to our kids birthdays. She was the kind of friend that even when parenting and kid stuff became crazy, you might not talk for a while. But when you did, it was like you never missed a beat. Like you were never apart. These are the things I will miss. When we meet again, I know it will be the same. Like we were never apart!!!
