“ In 1981 we left Korea with my Mother-in-Law with a promise that we were going to bring the two younger sons to the U.S. as soon as they completed their military obligations. We lived near Fort Rucker, AL and while she was with us, we never had to worry about our two daughters as they were well taken care of. She was a very strong woman who immediately made a garden in our yard and who took care of the house while her daughter (my wife) and I went to work. She was a great Mother-in-Law and i will miss her. She was the strength everyone needed, a strength that she passed on to her children and to her grandchildren. May she rest in eternal peace.

“ 할머니. What can I say? I can't believe you have left us. There are so many things I wish I could say to you...so many unspoken words, so many hugs I wish I gave you, and so many milestones I wanted to spend with you. It is truly devastating. However, it gives me hope that your memory will live on through your family. Through the fierceness, exuberance, vivacity, and generosity that you embodied in your daily life; we have become better individuals.

For those who didn't know my grandma that well, I think the best way to get a glimpse of what a wonderful person she was is through my memories. The memories that I hold on to dearly and makes me miss her so much.

When I was in elementary school, my family moved from Philadelphia to New Jersey to be closer to my grandma (in the same neighborhood, just around the corner to be exact). Oftentimes, being the scatterbrained person that I am, I would forget my home key. Tired and hungry after getting off the school bus, I would walk over to my grandma's house unannounced. Instead of asking what I was doing there, she would just embrace me with open arms, what seemed like a five-course meal (with homemade barley tea), and interesting stories about her past. She was always so happy to see me, and I was happy to see her. Suddenly, all the stresses of my day would melt away as we watched the latest Korean drama on the television. It was the best and I could always rely on her.

Of course, there were times that weren't all smiles. A lot of my memories include hard work with my grandma in her large garden. She would invite me and my sisters over at the crack of dawn to help water the plants, pull weeds, and pick an array of vegetables (cucumbers, peppers, leeks, squash... you name it- she had it in her garden). At the end of it, she would send us home with an enormous number of veggies, enough to fill up the whole fridge, and make a dish for us to eat at dinner. She never wished for us to be hungry and made sure we left with a full belly. I would do anything to have another bowl of her spicy, savory 육개장, filled to the brim with meat and fresh green onions.

I miss you so much, grandma. I hope to be as remarkable as you were and live with vigor and fearlessness. Love you.

*Your granddaughter,
Gina*
