Verse 28. For thou wilt light my candle. Even the children of the day sometimes need candlelight. In the darkest hour light will arise; a candle shall be lit, it will be comfort such as we may fittingly use without dishonesty -- it will be our own candle; yet God himself will find the holy fire with which the candle shall burn; our evidences are our own, but their comfortable light is from above. Candles which are lit by God the devil cannot blow out. All candles are not shining, and so there are some graces which yield no present comfort; but it is well to have candles which may by and by be lit, and it is well to possess graces which may yet afford us cheering evidences. The metaphor of the whole verse is founded upon the dolorous nature of darkness and the delightfulness of light; "truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun;" and even so the presence of the Lord removes all the gloom of sorrow, and enables the believer to rejoice with exceeding great joy. The lighting of the lamp is a cheerful moment in the winter's evening, but the lifting up of the light of God's countenance is happier far. It is said that the poor in Egypt will stint themselves of bread to buy oil for the lamp, so that they may not sit in darkness; we could well afford to part with all earthly comforts if the light of God's love could but constantly gladden our soul.

Love you Laura, Aunt Pauline and Uncle Sam

“ Tony, Sally, Anthony , Samantha and Family,

Trying to even come up with the right words to say and there simply just are none. I am so very sorry to hear about the loss of Laura. I will never forget all the fun times in the back yard growing up, or when we worked together at Walmart as we grew up. I surely will miss Laura’s smiling face whenever I was back in the area and we would run into each other. She will always have a special place in my heart.

*Love, Hugs, and Prayers,
Krystle Snyder*

“ I learned about Laura's passing Saturday Night. While I had spoken with Laura (only a Few Times) about her journey in life, Ive never had the pleasure to meet her. As Laura Struggled to Find Peace, Her Journal Shared In My Life Gave ME A Sense Of " Peace" . I Prayed Alot For This Young Lady Because I Was Grateful Of Her, I Am Gary's Mother. My Heart Brakes For Laura's Mother. I Pray The Glory and Peace Where Laura Now Lives Helps Heal Your Sadden Heart. She Is In Peace.

“ I remember getting called to the office in 1st grade at MHR my father was on the phone he told me I was a big brother and my sister was born I went to the class and told everyone I was so proud.., one time we got Burger King and on the ride home we were fighting over who got to hold the bag(each of us knew the other would get to the French fries 1st) my mom got so mad she threw the entire bag out the window almost hitting a passing car we looked at each other and laughed uncontrollably... I'll never forget that..

Or how every Christmas Eve Mom would read the polar express to us and you would ask why we leave Santa an Italian hogie and a Budweiser in our house instead of milk and cookies and me telling u because Santa was Italian.. I'm Gona miss your laughter, I love you little sister, I know you have peace now

“ I remember getting a call over the PA to come down to the office when I was in 1st grade , my father was on the phone letting me know I was a big brother, a moment I'll never forget and cherish forever. I also remember arguing who was gonna get to hold the Burger King bag on the drive home with mom one day (each of us knew the other would get to the French fries first) mom got so mad she took the bag and threw it out the window on delsea Drive almost hitting a passing car and we looked at each other and started laughing uncontrollably.. or on every Christmas Eve we would read the polar express and you would ask me why we left Santa an Italian hogie and a Budweiser instead of milk and cookies lol and I would tell you because Santa was Italian .. Laura I I know you are finally at peace and that gives me comfort I love you little sister
