

Louis T. Nocella

March 10, 1935 - May 8, 2025

Louis T. Nocella on May 8, 2025 of Woodbury Heights. Age 90. Beloved husband of the late Lucy Nocella (nee Mangano). Devoted father of Louis "Ted" Nocella and Larry Nocella (C. Heather Tuck). Loving brother of the late Richard Nocella. He is also survived by his brother's extended family, as well as his dear friends from the extended family of John and Carol McGovern, the breakfast club, the Woodbury Heights seniors, and many other loving family members and friends.

Louis loved reading. He kept a log of the more than four thousand books he read over the years. He loved watching the Phillies (having worked for their advertising team for a while). He has over a dozen bowling trophies from his championships. He also enjoyed traveling to the Atlantic City casinos with the seniors club and watching movies.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend a viewing on Thursday, May 15, 2025 from 11am to 12noon in The Chapel at Boucher Funeral Home, 1757 Delsea Drive, Deptford, NJ 08096.

“ Louis, Lou, Uncle Louie. The nicest, smartest, and most gracious person I ever knew. I spent a great deal of time with Lou. What he enjoyed most was breakfast, lunch, and dinner. He could REALLY eat! I miss his companionship, heart of gold and everyone is welcome attitude. Rest in peace dear friend. Carol McGovern

“ So sad to hear of the passing of Lou. My mother Claire and Lou would come over my house and we play board games. There was one particular game we played, a trivia type game, that I would always win and drive him nuts. He would challenge me to a bowling match but never did make that happen. He loved coming over to look at our Halloween & Christmas decorations. We will miss your humor Lou!

“ In the last few weeks of Louis’ life, he often reflected on how wonderful his life had been. He felt lucky, and I could hear the peace in his voice, knowing he truly lived a wonderful life.

For nearly six decades, I had the privilege of calling him my best friend, but he was more than that. He was a brother to me. We were inseparable, always together, navigating life and the advertising world as the original “Mad Men.” We shared countless memories - watching movies, enjoying dinners with the guys, grabbing midnight pizzas, making endless Dunkin’ Donuts runs, and, of course, making trips to Barnes & Noble for a bookstore run, followed by yet more coffee. Louis was a constant source of laughter, whether sneaking out of work early with a coat hidden on every floor or brightening every room he entered with his laughter and smile.

His generosity, quiet strength, and ability to make everyone feel valued are things I’ll remember. Louis lived life with lots of humor, and a heart open to everyone. I’m honored to have been one of his closest friends, and I know he earned his wings through a lifetime of compassion and love.

Louis’ memory will stay with me forever, etched in every laugh, conversation, and shared moment. I will always cherish our time together, and his spirit will guide me for years to come. Rest in peace, my dear friend and brother. You were truly one of a kind.

“ Growing up, I spent a lot of time with my poppy, John McGovern, and of course Uncle Louie! As many know, the two were inseparable. I spent many nights watching movies, checking out new books, or watching Jeopardy (which Louie always won!). I had the pleasure of growing up around Lou, and couldn't have asked for a better role model. I owe my love for coffee and books to Lou and my poppy, as the two always had me in Barnes & Noble. To know Louie was to love him. I will be forever grateful to have heard his many life stories and lessons. I'll miss you Uncle Louie, thank you for everything. ❤️

Hailey Parker - May 10, 2025 at 10:24 PM

“It’s hard to imagine a world without Uncle Louie. His passing leaves a void that no one can fill, but the memories he leaves behind will be cherished forever. A man of incredible wit, wisdom, and heart, Louie was more than just family. He was a force of nature.

For nine decades, Louie graced this world with a spirit larger than life. He and my Dad, like brothers in every way that mattered, were inseparable. Their bond was forged through years of working side by side in the advertising world, where they found both success and joy. Louie wasn’t just an ad man, he was an artist of words, an architect of ideas, and a mastermind behind countless campaigns of life, that left an indelible mark on the world. He loved to play baseball for the agency’s baseball team, and, just a few years ago, was bowling in three leagues at once.

Louie had a zest for life - A lifelong Philadelphia Phillies fan, he could rattle off stats, stories, and moments from the game like a true expert. His love for baseball was matched only by his devotion to Jeopardy, where he rarely missed an episode and always answered with the confidence of a walking encyclopedia. He probably knew more random facts than most of us ever will.

Uncle Louie’s sense of adventure was something to be admired. I’ll remember the Disney trips we shared, where he ran through the parks with the energy of someone half his age. The thrill of the rides, especially It’s a Small World, brought him so much joy. He didn’t just visit the Disney parks, he experienced them, smiling and laughing the entire time.

One of Louie’s greatest legacies is the way he shaped our lives through seemingly small moments. He and Poppy taught our daughter, Hailey, the joy of reading, encouraging her to devour books. Every year, Louie gave her Barnes & Noble gift cards, knowing she’d fall deeper in love with stories. Thanks to Louie, our Hailey loves to read and enjoys coffee runs with the same passion Louie had for his Dunkin’ Donuts brew. These are the gifts Louie gave to us, and they'll last a lifetime.

There were also those little things that made Uncle Louie: the See's Candies we looked forward to every Christmas, the late-night cheese steaks and pizza runs, and the advice that always came with a wink and a smile. He once told me with complete conviction that I'd never regret buying that Coach bag AND the wallet. And, of course, he was right. Louie had a way of giving advice that was always practical, thoughtful, and often spot-on.

Uncle Louie's passing leaves us with a profound sense of loss. Louie was a legend and a man who lived life with passion, humor, and grace.

We will miss you, Louie, more than words can say. But we'll keep your spirit alive in everything we do, the books we read, the coffee we drink, and the laughter we share. Rest in peace. And, most importantly, we'll honor you as we "Hit the ground running next week in the most magical place on earth!" Louie loved that line of "Hit the ground running!" Louie, your legacy will be cherished forever by all who were lucky enough to have known you.
