“ I remember going to Ritner Street every Sunday to see Grand mom. At that time it seemed like the street should have been named Dankanich Street instead of Ritner Street. I remember visiting Grand mom, Aunt Betty, Uncle Danny, Aunt Emma and Uncle Pete all getting together and just talking. It was amazing to see how such a big family actually was also such a close family. Those memories truly made me be proud to be a Dankanich. I remember years later when Uncle Pete moved to Jersey and I since had kids of my own, every time I would see Uncle Pete he always asked me about my son Jeff because he said he always read about him in the papers because of his high school basketball games. Uncle Pete always had a smile on his face when he would ask about him. But one of the things I noticed was Uncle Pete and my dad could have been twins. They looked so much alike, every time I seen Uncle Pete he reminded me of my own Father, especially after my Father passed. I have nothing but good memories of Uncle Pete. He always was easy to talk to and listen.

Jeff, that is an awesome memory and a great photo! I don't have any photos of Grandmom and Grandpop and I was too young to have any memory of them before they passed. Thank you for sharing.

“ Hard to pick just one memory of my father there were so many, but I think my favorite was every Friday night in the summer we would go to my grandmothers who lived in South Philly also, and down the street from a fishmarket. The guys there would go crabbing every Friday and back then a whole bushel of crabs was $5 and that was a lot of money back then in the 60s. We all loved crabs and he would spring for a bushel on Friday and we would all sit around my grandma’s kitchen table and that is where I learned how to crack a crab to eat it and I have loved seafood ever since. And later on when it was time to go home, at that time my father was not working at the shipyard he actually owned a beer distributor and he had a big truck that he used for deliveries and I was allowed to ride home in the back of the truck and it would be summer and there would be a wonderful breeze and my tummy would be full of crabs and there is not one time even now that I eat crabs that I do not think of my father. We both tended to have a crabby disposition at times. I wonder if there is a connection to all those crabs 🦀 we ate. ❤️
