“ There are a few rare people on this earth who go out of their way to make you feel welcomed. It’s an old-fashioned charm and warmth that is far too infrequent. We lost one of those people when Virginia passed. It feels weird to use her name, Virginia, because like many others I called her Mom. I called her mom because when I visited her house, she treated me like one of her own. That was just her way, she loved so easily.

When you’re young there are certain things you need to know, the most critical of all is that you are loved. Mom loved me and I loved her back. She made me feel like I was beautiful and special in a time of adolescence when I needed it more than ever. And though I hadn’t seen her in many years, I always knew if I were to pop in Virginia would be the same welcoming motherly spirit that I knew way back, as if no time had passed.

She had enough children of her own to care for, I’ll never understand why or how she did it but she did, she adopted us all. She never acted put out by an extra mouth at her table. I never heard her say a bad word about anyone – which meant I knew she never said a bad word about me. She raised incredible kids.

I believe spirits remain after death, that there is an afterlife. So, I will see you again mom, hopefully many years from now – but I know you will welcome me as if no time had passed, with love. May God keep you in a warm embrace until I can wrap my arms around you again. I love you.

“ So sorry for your loss, going to miss seeing her sitting on her porch, in all kinds of weather, playing on her phone and listening to her music. R.I.P Virginia 🙏
