“*Dear Katie,
I'm so sorry about the lost of your husband, Bill. My prayer is that Jehovah will especially comfort you during this time of great sorrow. Joe and I, were in Virginia, so I'm just finding out about Bills death today. Again, I'm so very sorry. Even when death is expected, the lost of a love one is still, so very hard to accept. I wish you many peaceful thoughts. May you find comfort and strength in your memories of the love you two shared together.

“ Kate, You thank me for being here for you through this, but it is I who need to thank you. Had I not been here I would not have gotten to know Bill as well as I did. I got to see the softer and kinder side of Bill and the side that loves you so very much. I say loves because that will be with you forever. Love does not die. Bill's love will be with you for eternity. Now I understand why you stuck it out when I thought you should have gone. You two were so fortunate to have shared that kind of love. It will stay with you and stay with him, even now. God blessed you both with each other.
